

Saturday March 21

Woodley Park News

Al Kilborne believes that the history of the Woodley mansion on Cathedral Avenue is a history of the nation, and he has written a book called Woodley and Its Residents to prove it. Woodley was built by Philip Barton Key on a ridge that overlooked the new national capital more than 200 years ago and is the house that gave this neighborhood its name. You can hear Kilborne talk about Woodley and its residents on Saturday April 4 at 4 pm at Woodley (3000 Cathedral Ave). Questions and RSVPs to Woodley Talk.

Unity Woods Yoga Center is offering free classes the week of April 6 at its studio at 2639 Connecticut Ave. You can see the schedule on the calendar on our website.

The Cleveland Park Library book sale is next weekend, March 28 and 29, from noon to 4 pm.

DC Public Art — Last chance to take the short survey on public art prepared by the Commission on the Arts and Humanities. This will help DCCAH develop a Master Plan for public art in the District. Just click here, and we'll pass on your responses to DCCAH.

Real estate tax assessments — If you want a list comparing the 2009 and 2010 assessments for Woodley Park (the Garfield and Woodley assessment neighborhoods), let me know.

CALENDAR

The WPCA Executive Committee usually meets on the first Wednesday of the month; the next meeting will be at 7:30 pm on Wednesday April 1 (for real) at Stanford (Connecticut Ave & Woodley Rd). A draft agenda should be posted on the website a few days before the meeting. All are welcome.

Rock Creek Cleanup — The 21st Annual Potomac River Watershed Cleanup will be held on Saturday April 4 from 9 am to- noon. One of the areas to be worked on is Normanstone Valley, just southwest of Woodley Park. The group will meet at corner of Normanstone Drive and 30th Street at 9 am. Check here for more information.

John Goodman
Past pres., WPCA
For more information, visit <http://www.wpcaonline.org/>